

From a traditional craftsman's establishment to a leading supplier of air conditioning systems

› 1977 Walter Weger laid the foundation stone for the Weger company in the small South Tyrol town of Kiens. Principal activity is the manufacture and assembly of ventilation and air conditioning systems.

› Staying rooted in South Tyrol tradition the company developed into one of the leading suppliers of ventilation and climate control units in Europe. Liberal mindedness, high adaptability and a strong tendency towards innovation characterize the track record for Weger. Intelligent solutions in reaction to the needs of the market.

› Growing customer requirements and our own pursuit of perfection call for an uninterrupted research and development process. The high quality construction of all products is also guaranteed by running an in-house quality management system ISO 9001-2000.

› Recognition and satisfaction of customer demands are our vision. We set up the fundamental principles for pleasant and hygienic room air conditions using innovative and flexible solutions in the realm of air conditioning and ventilation technology.

Ecological responsibility is dear to our hearts. Particularly when it's so much fun.

“The good climate of the Dolomite Alps”. Our location in the middle of the unrivaled mountains of the Dolomites incites us to provide for good air. In return we produce cleverly devised and ingenious air conditioning solutions. Advancement and awareness in our company of our home town also shows in our protection and improvement of the environment. So all our products and procedures are environmentally friendly and preserve natural resources.

We are a family owned business in South Tyrol shaped by the values of our homeland. We distinguish ourselves by our constancy and our precision, something that our clients and partners have appreciated in us for over 30 years.

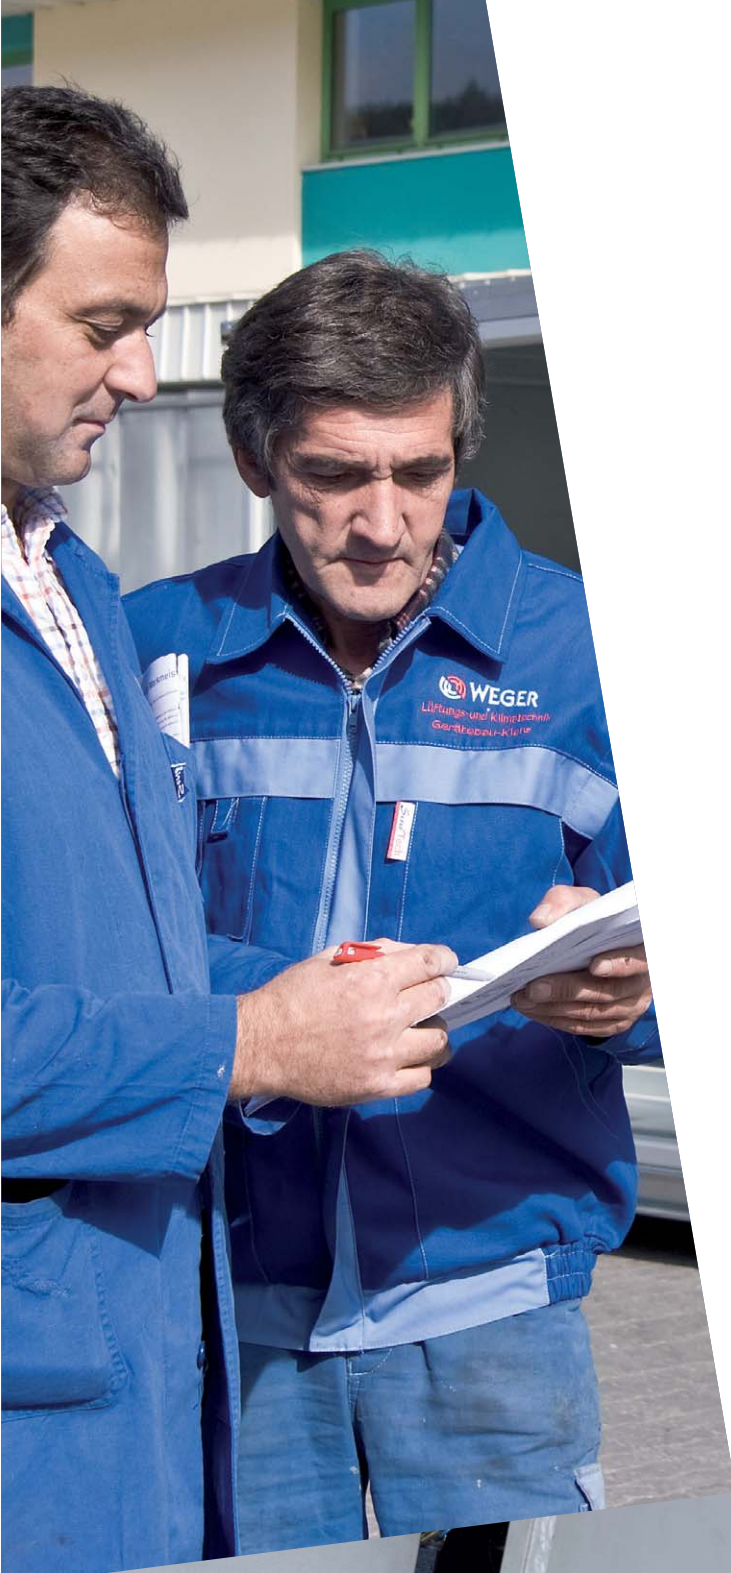

Perfection right from the start

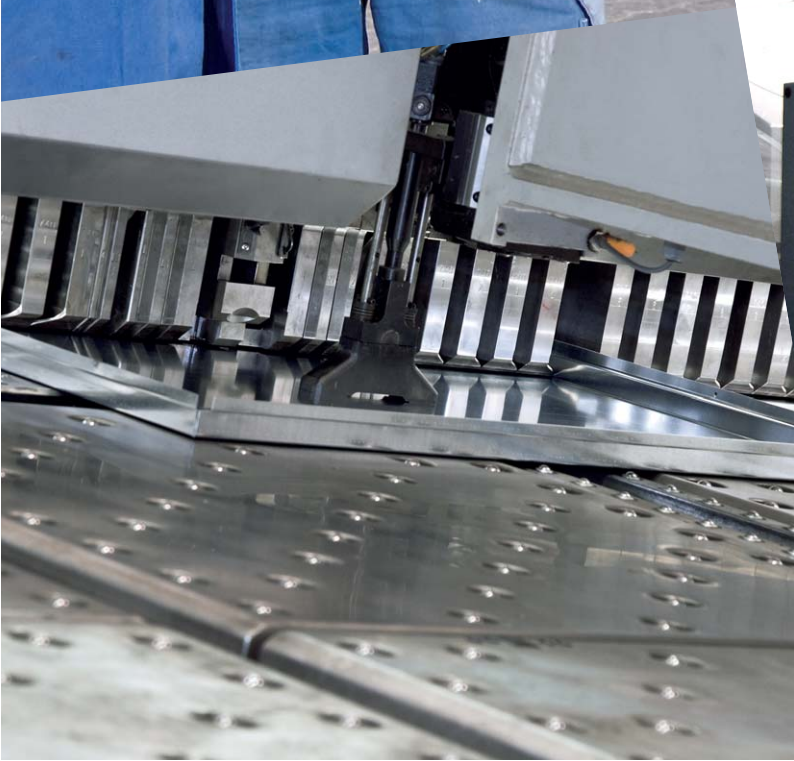

As specialists in the manufacture and assembly of air conditioning units we understand. Weger stands for competent advice, planning support, the highest quality, a singular willingness to perform, longevity, functionality and aesthetics.

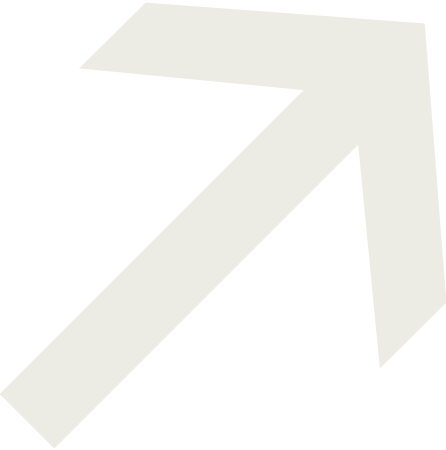

Dynamic and progressive

Our production techniques are state of the art – as is our fully automatic punching and laser centre in the company hangar in Kiens. Progress and success are due significantly, however, to the commitment of our motivated employees.

Intelligent technologies

Growing customer requirements demand flexible solutions. We develop and plan units adapted to individual needs and simultaneously maintain a good price-performance ratio.

So as a unique manufacturer of climate control units we are able, for example, to combine the standard casing or the non-interacting thermal casing versions in one unit.

WIEGER

Weger climate technology for the highest demands

All over the world where the right atmospheric environment is called for – for office buildings, commercial buildings, public institutions, in catering and in industry.

Even the custom air conditioning units for the meat and food stuffs processing industry and for ship building carry our name.

Weger – air solutions.
